Dear Gardeners

A LETTER FROM JOHN

Lengthening hours of daylight and warmer weather mean the urge to head outdoors and start enjoying another gardening season becomes greater with each passing week. The change to Daylight Savings Time also means there is enough light when we arrive home from work (for those who still work a conventional 9 to 5) to give us a chance to tour the garden and inspect how it is recovering from another unusual winter.

The early snow in November and what seemed like a never-ending series of storms in December and January that played havoc with city fixtures like Stanley park may also have affected your garden. If you have not already done so, this is a good time to take stock of the damage and plan the pruning and replacing necessary to repair your garden. On the positive side, replacing plants that met their demise can be an opportunity to acquire others that will give you even more enjoyment.

As we head into March, we are looking forward to seeing you in our garden centres once again. The weekend of March 16 – 18 will be our annual Garden Planning & Preparation weekend. By this time, many early shipments of trees, shrubs, and perennials will have started to arrive, so it's a wonderful opportunity to see what's new for this year. As always, our suppliers have new varieties with improved flowering and plant health characteristics to make your work easier and your garden more beautiful.

Customers in the Lower Mainland will see a change in our newspaper advertising program this year. We'll be advertising once again in the Vancouver Sun, with frequent banner advertisements in Friday's "Home" section gardening feature. We'll continue to advertise in several of the community newspapers as well as the Victoria Times-Colonist.

We've also made several changes to our website to ensure it's a more useful tool, with information on garden tips, new products and events in our garden centres – check out www.gardenworks.ca if you are not a regular visitor.

I look forward to seeing you soon and hope you are as excited about the new gardening season as I am. Good luck in your garden!

John Zaplatynsky,
President, GARDENWORKS

Annual Garden Planning & Preparation Weekend

Friday March 16 - Sunday March 18

We're ready for spring! Visit your local GARDENWORKS store for a weekend of gardening information and inspiration! Check out beautiful spring-blooming plants, replenish gardening supplies and get lots of friendly knowledgeable advice from our staff, our suppliers and local garden clubs.

Each store has its own lineup of events. Many include booths and tables set up for information about seeds, lawn care, bulbs, natural and organic gardening, plus garden clubs from all over the area.

Free clinics will be held throughout the weekend. For specific location details please phone your local GARDENWORKS or visit the customer clinics page on our website www.gardenworks.ca

HOORAY for SPRING

– HOW ABOUT A ‘HIGH 5’?

HIGH FIVE COMBINATION LAYOUT

- A Erysimum (wallflower) ‘Winter Joy’ Qty: 2
- B Euphorbia (wood spurge) ‘Helena’s Blush’ Qty: 1
- C Heuchera (coral bells) ‘Amethyst Myst’ Qty: 1
- D Tiareella (foamflower) Stargazer® ‘Mercury’ Qty: 2
- E Viola ‘Etain’ Qty: 1

This combination is great for a 12” pot with a sunny exposure.

By Scott Pearce, GARDENWORKS
Green Goods Merchandise Manager

By March, most of us have had just about enough of dull winter days, and the weather has improved enough to celebrate the arrival of spring by filling empty patio pots and containers with spring bloomers and colourful foliage plants!

Choose plants that are tolerant of cool spring temperatures including violas, wallflowers, euphorbia, primula, and early spring-flowering perennials, and combine them to create an attractive spring display.

Proven Winners offers some great suggestions for plant combinations, with recipes and photos to match. Try different colour schemes that match your mood, or maybe your home décor! I love combining shades of blue and purple, and was immediately attracted to ‘High Five’. Viola ‘Etain’, Tiarella ‘Stargazer Mercury’ and Erysimum ‘Winter Joy’ provide both flower power and sweet spring fragrance. Heuchera ‘Amethyst Mist’ lends bold colourful foliage, and Euphorbia ‘Helena’s Blush’ has silvery variegated foliage for more interest, and often produces soft yellow blossoms as an added bonus!

Proven Winners has some other inspiring early spring combinations, as well as many ideas for planting up containers later in the year – visit www.provenwinners.com for more sensational ideas!

Garden Agenda...

For Early Spring

Ahh... the freshness of spring is in the air and by the time you get this newsletter Daylight Savings Time will be upon us. Now that the days are getting longer it's time to get outside and release all our frustrations by vigorously gardening!

By Alan R. Reid, Ph.D., GARDENWORKS Botanist and Horticulturist

Pruning and Fertilizing

Pruning is often a frustration for gardeners. The major rule for pruning is to use the 3 D's: if the plant is diseased, damaged or deformed it should be pruned. But the specifics of how to prune vary from plant to plant. Some, such as roses, need pruning to encourage new growth and flowering. Others need to be pruned for shape or to let more light in. If you're in doubt about how to prune a particular plant, drop by or call your local GARDENWORKS.

Feed rhododendrons and azaleas with GARDENWORKS 4-12-20 fertilizer four times a year: once before flowering, once right after, six weeks after that and another six weeks after that. Usually it works out to every March, May, July and September. These feedings supply enough nourishment for the entire year and will increase next year's show and the overall health of the plants. The same is true for camelias.

Prune spring-flowering shrubs, such as Forsythia, Philadelphus, Osmanthus, Ribes and Weigela, just after they have finished flowering. Cut the oldest one-third of the branches to the ground, leaving new ones to produce lots of flowers next spring.

Summer-flowering shrubs, such as Hibiscus, Buddleia, Caryopteris and Potentilla, should be fertilized now to encourage strong branching and many flower buds. Amend the soil around each shrub with a top-dressing of compost or mushroom manure and fertilize with GARDENWORKS 6-8-6 All Purpose Fertilizer.

Bedding Plants

So when can we safely plant out our bedding plants? It's difficult to estimate when our last frost will occur, but there is great early colour for our gardens arriving right now. Use primulas, pansies ranunculus and hellebores to give life to that special corner. Mid-May is a safe time to plant out tender summer annuals such as petunias, impatiens and marigolds.

Perennials

Spring is an excellent time to plant perennials, but be sure to consider the whole year when you shop. It's easy to become over-enthusiastic with all the beautiful perennials that are blooming at this time of year, so remember to leave some space for a summer and autumn show later on.

Feed the soil and it will feed the plant. Amend the soil around perennials by digging in compost or well-rotted manure and raking it in gently. Sprinkle GARDENWORKS 6-8-6 All Purpose fertilizer around each plant, or choose from our selection of organic amendments such as Sea Soil or Keefer's West Coast Soil Energizer.

Bulbs

March and April is the time to check out our selection of perennial and annual bulbs, roots and tubers. Many of them can be planted in April, but others, such as dahlias and gladiolas, should be planted in May, so be sure to read the plant information carefully before planting.

Lawn Care

Get your lawn into shape in the month of April. For established lawns, it's beneficial to first tackle any moss problems. Lime the lawn with a granular lime such as Dolopril, wait 2 weeks, then apply GARDENWORKS Moss Control 14-4-8 to the lawn. After 2 or 3 days, when the moss turns brown, it's time to de-thatch to remove the dead moss. Next, top-dress the area with sand or topsoil with at least 30% sand content to even out the bumps and lumps. Sand helps break up any soil compaction and promotes rooting. Overseed with a grass seed that is appropriate to your area, such as GARDENWORKS Rapid Patch (100% perennial rye grass) or GARDENWORKS Shady Lawn Blend for those shady areas. The overseeding should be repeated three weeks later in order to replace any lost seed.

Create a Water Feature

By Peter Fitzmaurice, GARDENWORKS
GardenSupplies Merchandise Manager

Water gardening, the fastest growing landscaping phenomenon in North America, can add a whole new aspect to the way you interact with your garden. The relaxing sound of moving water and the extra dimension the reflective surface gives to the landscape invites and captivates all who visit there.

GARDENWORKS is happy to be carrying the Aquascape line of pond equipment at most of our locations in 2007. If your local GARDENWORKS store doesn't have the item you're looking for, we would be happy to bring it in to any of our stores by special request. Ask to see the Aquascape catalogue!

Last year we started the very successful "Build a Pond" program at a number of our locations. This year, we are starting a new program, "Build a Pondless Waterfall" a pondless waterfall is one that doesn't require a large body of water, thereby making it easier to maintain and safer for small children. Participants will take part in a work party supervised by experts to learn hands-on how to install a pondless waterfall.

Traditional ponds are also discussed – an easy adaptation of what you will be learning! Lunch is provided, as well as a gift pack with a number of exciting offers. Basically, it is a morning of fun. This event starts at 9 a.m. and runs through to lunchtime. (Details are provided when you register.)

Start an Award-Winning Rose Garden!

By Scott Pearce, GARDENWORKS
Green Goods Merchandise Manager

Strike It Rich™ 2007 AARS Winner

Over the last century roses have been the focus of extensive breeding, with scores of new varieties introduced each year. To help separate the wheat from the chaff, the All American Rose Selections (AARS) gives awards to the best new roses, based on two years of testing at 24 AARS trial gardens. Evaluation criteria include flower production, disease resistance, colour, garden performance, fragrance and more. Of course, some breeders earn more awards than others—since 1996 Weeks Roses has introduced 12 award winners!

Weeks Roses is a California-based rose grower and hybridizer. At their research greenhouse in Upland, California, about 35,000 flowers are hand-pollinated each year to produce around 200,000 seeds. After a thorough 8- to 10-year evaluation period, culminating with the AARS trials, only about 3 or 4 varieties emerge from the group as truly superior and market-worthy. Out of these only the very best receive AARS awards. Of the 12 award winners, 9 are the product of Weeks' own breeding program, and 3 are the result of relationships they have forged with other hybridizers. Here are some highlights of winners from Weeks, through the years.

Each petal of the 2005 introduction 'About Face' is a golden-orange colour on the inside, and a darker bronzy-red on the outside, creating a lovely contrast. 'About Face' is an upright, vigorous grower with a light "fresh-cut apple" fragrance. (photo: right)

Week's latest award comes this year, for 'Strike it Rich', a grandiflora displaying blooms of deep golden-yellow infused with orange-pink. (photo: top of page)

For photos and descriptions of all 12 Weeks Roses' AARS Award winners, visit our website or drop into your favourite GARDENWORKS location. Take advantage of all the hard work done by Weeks and the AARS to help start an award-winning rose garden of your own!

Landscape Your Life

As GARDENWORKS heads into its fourth year of successfully offering landscape planning services, we would like to announce that our Landscape Design Manager, Audrie Vander Werf, has attained the CLD designation – Certified Landscape Designer – and is one of the first in B.C. to do so!

This distinction is awarded by a panel of judges (members of Canada Nursery & Landscape Association) from across Canada who reviewed her work completed here in the GVRD.

Congratulations, Audrie!

By Audrie Vander Werf, B.A., H.L.T., C.L.D.,
GARDENWORKS Landscape Design Manager

What do you think is the best thing about the lower mainland of B.C.? For me, it's the long, slow spring. The unhurried lingering of fuzzy magnolia buds. The burst of brilliant rhododendron colour as early as February. The unexpected heat of those sunny days that, despite the rainy reputation of the coast, delight us early in the year.

As gardeners, we can seize the slow transition into spring to do our al fresco homework. Sit in your favourite chair and look at your green space. What will you do in the garden this year?

All types of media coach you as to what you should do. Yes, you need to rake, aerate, fertilize, fork, dig, turn over. Your gardening muscles will be gently nudged into action again, and you can enjoy your crocuses and early tulips while you work. But... if the thought "what for?" crosses your mind at any point during those activities, or even while reading this article, it may be time to see your outdoor space as working for you.

I ask my clients to rephrase the question and ask "What's my garden going to do for me this year? And next?"

So will you begin preparing your yard for a season or three of outdoor dining and entertaining? Or will it be a space for playing and reading? We can help you with any or all of it! Landscape designers are like life coaches—for your outdoor life. We take this aspect of your routine and that aspect of your time constraints and this element that you would like and that idea that you had, add many of our own inspirations... and organize it into one flowing, all-encompassing design. The completely different needs and ideas you each bring to the task is what will make your garden plan specifically for you. I invite you to view our services at www.gardenworks.ca, or call me at the office: 604-629-1419.

It's common knowledge that high-quality, updated landscaping increases a home's value when it's time to sell, but more importantly, a good design increases your pleasure in the time you spend in your home and garden while you live there – a valuable investment in either case!

Considering Options

CONTAINER GARDENING

By Joanne E. Betzler,
C.H.T., GARDENWORKS
Ocean Park store manager

After a long grey winter, coastal gardeners are eager to brighten spaces with signs of life, especially colour. Open to interpretation and individual tastes, compact in nature and easy to assemble, a container arrangement is the ideal solution for such a quandary.

The old standbys such as pansies, primula, potted daffodils, tulips and hyacinth are sure things for the early spring planter. They offer a boost of colour and fragrance and there are many to choose from. While super on their own, it can be fun to insert one or two larger plants to add texture, variation and a bit of drama to your container.

Evergreen Euphorbia is a reliable companion for a front door planter. What about 'Rudolph'? The lovely cultivar E. martinii, 45 - 60 cm (18 - 24"), may have a red nose in the winter but come spring it will open up greenish-yellow flowers with red in the centre. Also charming is 'Shorty', which is a compact 38 - 45 cm (15 - 18") and tidy, with blue-green foliage. The selection of Euphorbia is vast, the challenge will be in the choosing.

Erica (a.k.a. heather) is a great evergreen shrub to feature with those standbys. Not tall by any means, 20 - 35 cm (8 - 14"), it offers evergreen whorled leaves accentuated in late winter to early spring by hundreds of tiny, bell-shaped flowers that range from red to pinks to whites. For red try 'Myretoun Ruby' or 'Kramers Red'; 'Darley Dale' or 'Pink Spangles' for pink; and 'Springwood White' for a pristine show.

If height is what you seek, you can be sure there will be a broadleaf evergreen shrub to fit the bill. For the shadier site, a good choice would be a Skimmia japonica. 'Olympic Flame' is 75 cm high and 90 cm wide (2.5 - 3 ft. high and 3 ft. wide) and its winter buds open to white flowers in spring. 'Red Princess' is 1.1 m high and a little wider (3.5 ft. by 4 ft.) and its white spring flowers are fragrant.

On a grander scale, check out the Pieris japonica selection. 'Flaming Silver', 75 cm (2.5 ft.) high with white flowers and pinkish-red new growth, matures to green and white variegation. 'Forest Flame', 1.8 - 3 m (6 - 10 ft.) high and 1 - 1.5 m (3 - 5 ft.) wide, will need a large container to accommodate its size. Adorned with white flowers and bright red new foliage that softens to creamy pink, then green, this is another impressive shrub. All offer year-round greenery, bear seasonal flowers and are content to be container bound.

These are but a few of the many selections available to the gardener willing to experiment and try something new. A visit to GARDENWORKS will be a revealing and rewarding quest for those seeking options for a container garden that embraces the changing season.
